SERVING STANTON,
CLAY CITY &
POWELL COUNTY,
KENTUCKY FOR MORE THAN 100 YEARS

Longtime minister and friend, Bro. David Rule gone at 83

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

If you have grown up or even lived in Powell County for any amount of time, then the name David Rule should be familiar to you. In fact, Bro. Rule was probably one of the most influential and kindest men in the county. His love of history and of working with the schools has become legendary. His face was one that was a familiar sight and reassuring to many.

But that smile and calming effect will have to be a part of a memory. Bro. David Rule passed away Monday afternoon. He was 83.

Rule was well known to many residents as he pastured the Stanton First Presbyterian Church for 42 years. That made him the longest serving pastor of the church and probably the longest serving minister in the county. He was known for visiting the schools, singing songs with the kids and giving out candy to them at Christmas time. He believed that even the youngest residents of the county needed to see God's love at work, first hand.

Rule, originally from Ashland, graduated from high school at the age of 16. He went on to Asbury College where he stayed for three years before transferring to Centre College in Danville. After graduating from there in 1946 he enrolled at the Princeton Seminary in New Jersey.

While attending there he had a chance to become a Bible and Science Teacher at the Highland Institute. It was there that he met the woman who would become his wife, Wilma Thompson. They were married on June 5, 1955, just five days after he graduated from the seminary.

The couple took a church in upstate New York, but while visiting family in Kentucky they learned of an opening at a place called Stanton.

"I'd never heard of Stanton," Rule told the Times during an interview in 1994. During the visit Wilma's hometown pastor told them about the opening at the Stanton First Presbyterian Church. They took a drive and ended up at Dalton's Restaurant in Stanton where they met some of the members of the church.

Rule was asked to preach for the church the following Sunday. It was the start of a long, prosperous and rewarding life for Rule. He had found a place he knew he was needed.

Rule preached to thousands, possibly hundreds of thousands over his ministerial career. He led outdoor services at the Mt. View Drive-In in his early days. Even in the past few years, as part of the Powell County Ministerial Association

Rogers crowned as 2012 Miss Corn Festival

The 23rd Annual Stanton Corn Festival was held last weekend and one of the highlights of the event is the crowning of the new Miss Corn Festival. Taylor Rogers, a senior at Powell County High School, was honored as this year's winner.

"I entered to have fun. I've never experienced the pageant world," Rogers said after winning the crown last Saturday night. "Also, being a coaches' daughter doesn't really get you around to many girly things."

Rogers is glad she won but is also looking toward the future.

"My future plans are to attend college, with elementary education as my major. And hopefully get a job as a kindergarten teacher."

Rogers is the daughter of Keri Coombs and Tim and Stacy Rogers.

Parents, students and educators take part in special prayer service

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

More than 100 students, staff members, parents and church members from various churches gathered at the old tree between the Powell County Middle and High School Sunday evening. The crowd did not gather to protest the start of school or anything else. They were there to hold prayer for the new school year, which began on Monday.

The gathering was hosted by the Powell County Ministerial Association. President Anthony Molihan, who is also the pastor of the Stanton First Church of God, told the crowd that as the new school year approached the community should pray for the kids, the teachers and the leaders of the school system. Prayers covering topics like educational issues, morals and safety concerns were held.

Powell County School Superintendent Mike Tate and his family were on hand for the prayer service. So was school board members Marty Burton and Evelyn Faulkner. Former and current teachers were in attendance, as were counselors and Stanton Elementary's new principal Jimmy Crase. Crase even led one of the prayers.

Ministers and lay ministers from area churches prayed for guidance for students and staff, as well as for the safety of the kids as they travel to and from school. Prayers asking God to help Christian young people to be "men and women of God" and "leaders" in standing up against "what the world would have them believe to be right" were also held.

"I can remember hearing stories of teachers like Betty Crabtree reading from the Bible to her second grade classes to help them learn what was right, or even having a personal experience of a teacher like Fern Brewer who would pray for me if I was sick," Molihan told the crowd. "I know those days are over, but we can still pray for our students and staff as the times have changed and the things the students meet today are harder."

The annual back to school prayer is a concerted effort by the ministerial association to show solidarity and support for the school system, as well as for the students, staff and community it serves.

The Breakfast Club, a Monday morning devotional group that used to meet at the Stanton Dairy Queen, will now meet at the old tree each week. If there is inclement weather, the meetings will be held at the Stanton Baptist Church. On those mornings the students will be fed and after the devotional will be taken by church vans to school.

Those gatherings begin at 7:30 a.m. each Monday.

which he was an integral part of, he would conduct Sunrise Services at Easter.

Rule retired in 1997, but he was still quite active with the ministerial association and other projects.

His love for history was well-known. He became an authority on the history of the Presbyterian Church in Kentucky as well as with local historical events. As recent as last year he wrote special messages that were run in the Clay City Times and was willing to talk with anyone about his love of history. More importantly he also loved to talk to people about God.

His tenure as pastor has not been surpassed and for a man who had not heard of Stanton before 1955, staying around that long had to be out of love and service. Rule was asked about his longevity in that interview in 1994 and his answer was simple.

“And as for remaining in Stanton, the Lord has called me here, and He never has told us to leave,” Rule said. On Monday the Lord called Bro. Rule to come home.

Arrangements were pending at press time.

Powell team takes title two years in a row

A group of girls from Powell County traveled to Jackson this summer to play some summer softball in a league that consisted of teams made up of players from Perry County Central/Hazard/Powell and Breathitt/Jackson City/Leslie. Although there were only three teams in the league, two of the teams consisted of players from some of the surrounding counties. As for Powell County, their team consisted of all Powell County girls except for one girl that came from Wolfe County to play a couple of games. The Outlaws as they were called were coached by Shane Trent and Ronna Donithan. The team members consisted of: Brittany Black, Nikki Wells, Shawnda Maynard, Allison Trent, Sarah Trent, Taylor Rogers, Olivia Nickell, Alyssa Pennington, Amber Branham, Felicia Ledford, Haley Smith (Wolfe County), Kenzi Barnett. The team went 10-2 in summer play and won the regular season and tournament championship for the second year in a row. They beat the Raptors (PCC/Hazard/PC) 2-1 in the championship game.

The players wanted to thank the parents, coaches and Hope Branham (scorekeeper) for all their support.

I'm just saying . . .

Hard to say goodbye

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

I want to start out with an apology to anyone who felt as if I slighted you last week. If your event was not covered it was because I took a little time off and our excellent, yet small staff, did all they could to cover everything. I hope you understand.

I worried about missing something even though my wife kept reminding me that it was time to take a break. I guess if you do something long enough and your heart is in it, it is tough to just let go.

This community had to let go of a part of its heart, so to speak, on Monday. Bro. David Rule, a wonderful man of God, a rock as some have called him, passed away. If you live here then you have heard of him or maybe even had the pleasure of knowing him.

He was kind, unassuming, mild, loving and patient. The ultimate characteristics of what he wanted his life to be. As a minister he wanted, as all Christians do, to emulate Christ.

Some may have taken his meek nature as weakness, but we all know it was a strength that many of us Christians wish we possessed. His love for his fellowman was quite evident, especially when it came to children. Going to the schools, singing with the kids and handing out candy at Christmas, no one who was ever touched by that will ever forget it.

In fact, anyone who ever met Bro. Rule will never forget him. He did not do it for fame or fortune, he did it out of true love.

When you put love into the equation and a heart as big as Bro. Rule's, it is always hard to say goodbye. We will miss him here, we lost a great man.

But in heaven they gained a might man of God, a warrior who fought the fight and ran his race - doing it all in love. We need more men and women with his spirit and willingness to make a difference.

I saw a Facebook post about how we need more people like Bro. Rule to influence our kids in schools like in days of old. Some have agreed, but may be leery of what the world will say.

Bro. Rule would probably look at the situation, see how to best handle it and ask for God's guidance all along the way. We should do the same and be ready to stand up for our kids, for our Lord and to tell those in control that we want positive influences like Bro. Rule in our schools again. Some are already there, but more are needed.

As we mourn here, we should also rejoice. Bro. Rule may have left this world, but I believe he wouldn't trade where he is now for anything this world has to offer. Isn't that a role model our kids should see?

I'm just saying . . .

Guest Column: Foreclosure settlement set to help more Kentuckians

By JACK CONWAY
KY Attorney General

Since 2007, nearly nine million homes have been lost to foreclosure. Banks foreclosed on nearly 67,000 homes in Kentucky since the height of the mortgage foreclosure crisis in 2008. This crisis brought our country to its knees and turned the American dream into a nightmare for families in every community in our country and our Commonwealth.

As you may recall, my office was part of the national foreclosure settlement announced earlier this year between state attorneys general and the nation's five largest banks. Our participation in this historic settlement secured $58 million to provide direct and immediate assistance to Kentucky families and communities affected by the mortgage foreclosure meltdown.

Nearly $39 million of the settlement is available to homeowners who faced foreclosure and had loans with Bank of America, JP Morgan Chase, Wells Fargo, Citi and Ally/GMAC. An independent administrator is allocating this money to consumers who qualify for refinancing, loan write downs, debt restructuring and/or payments of up to $2,000. For more information on qualifying for this segment of the settlement, visit our website www.ag.ky.gov.

On July 30, I announced the allocation of the remaining $19.2 million of this settlement to help create affordable housing, revitalize abandoned or vacant properties and to assist Kentuckians who have lost their homes.

Keeping this money was no small task. During the budget process in Frankfort, I fought to make certain that his money went to consumers and communities; communities like Louisville, which has seen more than 17,200 foreclosures since 2008.

I was pleased to be joined by Mayor Greg Fischer at the press conference announcing the distribution of $1.5 million to the City of Louisville, of which $750,000 will go to the Vacant and Abandoned Property Initiative and will be matched in part by the Bloomberg Foundation. This will help rehab vacant properties and return them to use and the property tax rolls. An additional $500,000 will go toward the Targeted Demolition Program to address blight, and $250,000 to the Affordable Housing Trust Fund for housing grants to increase access to affordable housing for low to moderate income families.

Of course, this isn't just a problem in Louisville. It's a problem across the Commonwealth. That's why $7.5 million of the settlement is designated to assist federally-supported housing programs that cover all of Kentucky's 120 counties through the Kentucky Housing Corporation. Three million of that allocation will go to the NeighborWorks Alliance, which will leverage matching grants for an additional $7.5 million, to assist with the purchase and rehabilitation of existing properties, purchase and rehabilitation of affordable rental properties, and purchase of mortgages to restructure payment in an effort to allow homeowners to retain properties. Three million dollars will establish a down payment pool and closing cost assistance pool for owners who want to purchase vacant or foreclosed properties. The remaining $1.5 million goes to KHC's Homeownership Protection Center, which will fund 19 Kentucky Housing Corporation approved counseling agencies that provide foreclosure prevention and pre-purchase counseling.

I am pleased that we were able to identify agencies that can match our settlement dollars with other grants, allowing us to maximize the settlement to help even more Kentuckians.

Additional allocations include:

- $250,000 to each of Kentucky's four regional Legal Aid Centers to help homeowners who are going through the foreclosure process or seeking to avoid foreclosure.
- $5 million to the Office of the Attorney General to assist consumers and investigate mortgage and securities issues. This includes potential litigation regarding Mortgage Electronic Reporting Systems (MERS) involvement in wrongful foreclosures.
- $4 million to update the Kentucky All Schedule Prescription Electronic Reporting Program (KASPER). Money will be used to enhance software to ensure compliance with House Bill 1; Kentucky's newly enacted prescription drug abuse law.
- $150,000 to the Cabinet for Health and Family Services. Funds will provide lead abatement through the Division of Public Health.

As part of this settlement, all of the agencies receiving funds must report to my office monthly with details on how they are spending the money.

This settlement is about providing second chances. It's about communities fighting back, and it's about fighting for Kentuckians who don't have a voice.

Guest Column: Chick-Fil-A issue is about equality and freedoms

By MICHAEL FRAZIER
Guest Columnist

“Chick-Fil-A!” Either hate the company or love the company. It is a matter of personal opinion and freedom of speech as constituted in the United States Bill of Rights. I knew it would only be a matter of time before the current dispute surrounding Chick-Fil-A, a Christian company, would blow into my hometown. As reading The Clay City Times, I came across two very interesting and opinionated articles: Freedom of Speech and Intolerance Do Not Go Together and Backing Your Beliefs. The content, respectfully, was very enlightening. Nevertheless, the articles were very one sided.

The main objectives of these articles were to promote standing firmly for one's beliefs. Furthermore, as United States citizen, we are given the right to freedom of speech-which gives one the right to stand up for their beliefs. An observer could make an argument in which a hidden agenda of “Christian thinking” was also an underline statement after reading these articles. All American citizens possess the unalienable right to freedom of speech and expression. Of course, this freedom includes standing alongside one's beliefs. Nevertheless, there is no argument against or opposition to the main points and objectives of the articles.

Though, there were quite a bit of information left out which needs to know before becoming biased concerning the Chick-Fil-A scandal, same-sex marriage endorers, and a look into one's own righteous mind. The outrage between Chick-Fil-A and human rights activists does not involve one's own personal conviction (in general) or Christianity. The situation does not involve evil “haters” trying to bring down a Christian company because of their beliefs in general retrospect. It's how Chick-Fil-A is executing their beliefs on society and promoting their beliefs as political agenda to discriminate against same-sex couples.

It is true that Chick-Fil-A does not discriminate within hiring practices or to whom they sell their products- due to the protection by federal and state laws. The concern for discrimination is with the $7 million given to lobbyist and political activist groups in support to ban same-sex marriage such as “Chick-fil-A's WinShape Foundation, which was created by Chick-Fil-A founder and chairman S. Truett Cathy in 1984, were the Marriage & Family Foundation ($1,188,380), and Exodus International ($1,000) (reported by Huffpost). Chick-Fil-A has donated an estimated $5 million to anti-gay organizations and hate groups between 2003 and 2010, which is a more disturbing. Indeed, numerous companies have donated to same-sex supporting causes and no one sees conservatives or Christians boycotting and protesting against these actions. This is because of an astronomic reason: these companies are promoting human civil equality, not trying to discourage it like the companies Chick-Fil-A.

S. Truett Cathy does have the right to freedom of speech and stand up for his beliefs- as all American citizens. However, one cannot exercise their freedoms to infringe upon the freedoms of others, as defined by federal law- which Chick-Fil-A is attempting to accomplish. The true controversy of Chick-Fil-A: attempting to forcibly assert their beliefs to suppress the freedom of a group of American citizens.

As said, it's not about one's own personal convictions (respectfully) or an attempt to eliminate one's morals and beliefs. It's about the same objective agenda in the stated articles in the Clay City times: let one believe and exercise their beliefs freely- to each his own and we should never back down from our personal convictions.

The evidence against Chick-Fil-A is enormous- in regard to discrimination. The company wants to exercise their freedoms and practice their beliefs- while promoting discrimination; suppressing freedom; limit, discriminate, and reject human equality for a certain group. Chick-Fil-A wants to exercise their freedoms, while suppressing the freedoms of others. When you get down to it: it's not about Chick-Fil-A, Christianity, or our righteous minds. It's about human equality and freedom. The unalienable right that a human can love and marry whomever they choose. The right to fall in love and spend the rest of their life with the person who makes them happy. And the right to freely express these emotions. It is my dream that we can put aside our differences and do what is necessary and right for human equality. This should not be about any single person or their beliefs; but doing what we all know that is right for human equality. After all, it is our Freedom of Speech and expression.

I'm just saying....

Thank You Kindly,
Michael Frazier
Clay City

(Editor's Note: Both columnists that Mr. Frazier refers to agree that freedom of speech and opinions are important and vital to our nation's very existence. In fact I love it when people use my closing line to make a point. Imitation is the highest form of flattery. That is why this letter is being run this week.

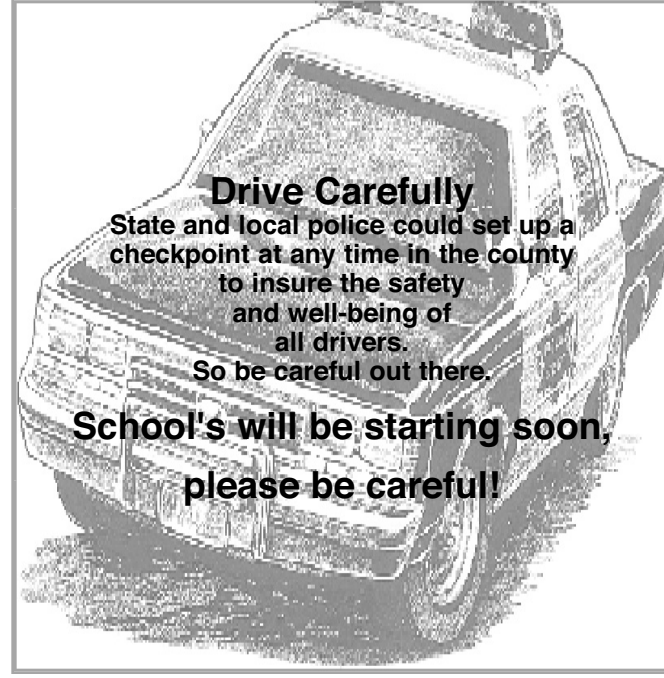

As for saying the “opinion columns” were opinionated, is sort of redundant they are "opinion columns", but “hidden Christian agenda”, there is no hidden agenda. The opinions expressed were quite open.

While we do believe in equality, the argument has gone from freedom of speech to making it a hate inspired discussion. I have seen no smoking gun evidence that Chick-Fil-A is led by bigots or haters, other than the fact that the owner donates to groups that may have similar values.

However, similar values and being exactly the same are not accurate depictions; no more than saying the owners of Amazon.com or Microsoft are equal in thought and action to that of Roseanne Barr and her comments just because they donate money to other groups and their causes that she supports. People can agree on some values, but the many different methods used by some radicals do not spell it out for everyone. In other words, one bad apple don't spoil . .

. you get the jest.

Opinions and free speech, if it does no harm to anyone is and should be acceptable. I have not seen anything to change my mind on the subject of free speech in this matter. If others wish to draw their own conclusion, then that is their right. As for now love, God's love and love we have for one another should take center stage, not division, hate or trying to suppress beliefs because one may not agree. I'm just saying . . .)

Powell residents can take part cancer prevention study

More than 50 Mount Sterling residents have signed up for an opportunity to participate in an upcoming historic study that has the potential to change the face of cancer for future generations. And now, one week away from the event, others are urged to sign up today to take part in the American Cancer Society's Cancer Prevention Study-3 (CPS-3) so that cancer's greatest mysteries can be unlocked.

Men and women between the ages of 30 and 65 who have never been diagnosed with cancer are needed to participate in CPS-3 in Mount Sterling. CPS-3 will enroll a diverse population of up to half a million people across the United States and Puerto Rico and will help researchers better understand the lifestyle, environmental, and genetic factors that cause or prevent cancer.

The opportunity for local residents to enroll in CPS-3 is being made possible in partnership with the American Cancer Society and Saint Joseph Cancer Center, part of KentuckyOne Health. Participants can schedule an appointment by visiting cps3kentucky.org or calling 1-888-604-5888.

Enrollment will take place at Saint Joseph Mount Sterling on Friday, August 10 from 7 a.m. – 2:30 p.m. Individuals will be asked to read and sign an informed consent form; complete a comprehensive survey packet that asks for information on lifestyle, behavioral, and other factors related to your health; have his/her waist circumference measured; and give a small blood sample. Upon completion of this process, the Society will send periodic follow-up surveys to update information and annual newsletters with study updates and results.

The enrollment process takes approximately an hour to complete. Periodic follow-up surveys of various lengths are expected to be sent every few years to individuals. Researchers will use the data from CPS-3 to build on evidence from a series of American Cancer Society studies that began in the 1950s that collectively have involved millions of volunteer participants.

The Hammond-Horn Study and previous Cancer Prevention Studies (CPS-I, and CPS-II) have played a major role in understanding cancer prevention and risk, and have contributed significantly to the scientific basis and development of public health guidelines and recommendations.

Those studies confirmed the link between cigarette smoking and lung cancer, demonstrated the link between larger waist size and increased death rates from cancer and other causes, and showed the considerable impact of air pollution on heart and lung conditions. The current study, CPS-II, began in 1982 and is still on-going.

But changes in lifestyle and in the understanding of cancer in the more than two decades since its launch make it important to begin a new study.

The voluntary, long-term commitment by participants is what will produce benefits for decades to come.

For more information or to learn how to become involved with CPS-3, visit cps3kentucky.org, email cps3@caner.org, or call toll-free 1-888-604-5888.

EKU launches accelerated 3+2 dual degree program

Eastern Kentucky University students pursuing a bachelor's degree in chemistry or forensic science can now also complete a master's degree in chemistry in one additional year as part of an accelerated dual degree program.

With the program, students earn a bachelor's degree and a master's degree with five years of full-time study – less time than earning each degree separately would take.

"Graduates with a B.S. forensic science degree from ECU complete all the coursework required for an entry level position in a crime lab," explained Dr. Lori Wilson, chair of ECU's Department of Chemistry. "However, there is stiff competition for crime lab jobs and our graduates were competing with applicants who have a M.S. forensic or chemistry degree. We created the dual B.S. Forensic/M.S. Chemistry degree so that our graduates would not only be more competitive for entry level positions but also qualified for eventual promotions or supervisory positions."

Graduates of the dual degree program will be qualified for more than 30 different types of positions, ranging from environmental labs to health care, Wilson noted.

"This is a good option for students who are not ready to commit to a Ph.D., but want the advantage a graduate degree can bring," she added.

"Students may apply for the 3+2 program in their junior year," said Dr. Jerry Pogatschnik, Dean of Graduate Studies at ECU. "Admission requirements for the accelerated degree are the same as those for the two-year master's program with the exception that 3+2 applicants do not have to take the GRE. Upon acceptance to the 3+2 program, the undergraduate student may take graduate level courses. Once the baccalaureate degree is awarded the student is granted full admission to the graduate level program."

Ten graduate students are currently enrolled in the master's degree program, but enrollment is expected to increase to between 30 and 40 students with the addition of the accelerated degree option, based on similar programs elsewhere.

August is immunization month

August is being observed as National Immunization Awareness Month in an effort to highlight the importance and continued benefits of immunizations.

"Making sure children are immunized is crucial in protecting the health and welfare of Kentuckians," said Dr. Steve Davis, acting commissioner for public health. "Immunizations protect against illnesses such as measles, polio, whooping cough, influenza, chickenpox and tetanus. It's vital that we recognize the importance of vaccinating against these illnesses, or we run the risk of seeing rates of these diseases increase. Every parent should become knowledgeable about vaccines, how they prevent disease and when their child should be vaccinated."

The Kentucky Immunization Program provides the following general guidelines for vaccinations:

Everyone over the age of six months should receive a seasonal flu shot every year. Those individuals in close contact with an infant should receive a Tdap (tetanus, diphtheria and pertussis) vaccination.

Young children from birth to age six years need a series of vaccines to protect against several diseases such as measles, polio, whooping cough, chickenpox and hepatitis.

Adolescents need immunizations to help protect against tetanus, diphtheria, whooping cough and meningitis at age 11 or 12.

Protection received from childhood vaccines decreases over time. Preteens, teens and adults may need to be revaccinated, even if they were completely vaccinated as children.

For more information about immunizations, contact the Kentucky Department for Public Health's Immunization Program at (502) 564-4478 or your local health department.

It's time for Farmer-Banker Field Day

MIKE REED
County Ag.
Agent

You are Invited!

All Powell County Farm Families are invited to attend this year's Farmer Banker Field Day Scheduled for Friday, Aug. 17 at 5 p.m. This year's Field Day will be held at the beautiful farm of Judge Sara Walter Combs of 1081 Lower Cane Creek Road in Stanton. This year's field day will be somewhat different this year as we will not have wagon tours, but will have booths and demonstrations to view during the afternoon of Aug. 17. There will be a program for the ladies entitled "Plan, Cook & Freeze". There will also be an educational program for the kids, taught by 4-H assistant Dean Rogers .

At the conclusion of the educational tour stops and programs in the barn, our field day meal will be served by the Whitaker Bank and UK Extension employees. After the meal, door prizes will be awarded to those in attendance, donated by local businesses still interested in and supporting local agriculture. The Powell County Farmer Banker Field Day is sponsored each year by the Whitaker

Bank of Powell County and the University of Kentucky, Powell County Cooperative Extension Service. We encourage all our local farm families to attend.

This week's Recipe Feature at the Powell County Farmers Market Cucumber, Corn and Bean Salsa

2 large tomatoes
1 yellow bell pepper
1 small red onion
¼ cup chopped fresh cilantro
½ cup black beans
½ cup fresh whole kernel corn, cooked

1/8 cup cider vinegar
1/8 teaspoon sugar

Directions: Wash all vegetables. Finely chop cucumbers, tomatoes, pepper and onion. Combine in a large mixing bowl with chopped cilantro. Drain and rinse beans and add chopped vegetables. Add cooked fresh corn.

In a small bowl, mix together ranch dressing packet, vinegar and sugar. Pour dressing over vegetables and mix well. Serve immediately or refrigerate until chilled.

Support Your Local Farmers Market

The Powell County Farmers Market Association is sponsoring a Family style dinner as a fund raiser for the local market. This will be a dinner featuring locally grown vegetables, prepared by local cooks who support the market. This dinner will be prepared and served at the Powell County Extension Service Conference Center on Friday, Aug. 24 from 5-7 p.m.

Recipes will be based on what is available at the market at this time, but expect such good food as home styled cream corn, green beans, sliced heirloom tomatoes, butterfly pork chops, honey chicken, peach cobbler and blackberry cobbler, etc. Tickets are $10 per person and can be obtained at the Powell County Extension Office at 169 Maple Street in Stanton, or from many of the members of the Powell County Farmers Market. Again, this is a fund-raising project of the market, designed to showcase locally grown, sustainable Powell County produce. Call the Extension Office at 663-6405 for more details.

August Beef Cattle Notes Spring-Calving Cow Herd

• Continue to watch for pinkeye and treat if necessary. Minimize problems by clipping pastures, controlling face flies and providing shade. Monitor the bulls' activity and physical condition as the breeding season winds down.

• Fescue pastures tend to go dormant in July and August, so look for alternatives like warm season grasses during this period of time. Try to keep the young calves gaining weight. Go to pastures which have been cut for hay to have higher quality re-growth when it is available.

• Remove bulls from the cow herd by the end of the month and keep them away from the cows. A short calving season can concentrate labor during the calving season; group calves by age so that it is easier to find a convenient time to vaccinate, castrate, dehorn, etc.; and provide a more uniform group of calves at market time.

• Mid-July (when the bulls are being removed) is a good time to deworm cattle, use a product that is effective against inhibited ostertagia. Re-implant calves which were implanted at birth if the type of implant and amount of time indicate. Calves which haven't been vaccinated for blackleg should be. Spraying or using a pour-on for flies while cattle are gathered can supplement other fly control methods. Remember to work cattle early in the morning when it is cool and handle them gently to minimize stress.

Fall-Calving Cow Herd

• De-worm cows in mid-July with a product that is effective against inhibited ostertagia.

• Fall-calving cows should be dry and pregnant now. Their nutrient needs are minimal and they can be maintained on poor pasture to avoid over fattening. Keep a good free-choice mineral mix available at all times. You can use a lower phosphorus mineral supplement now, if you want to save a little money. These cows are regaining body condition after a long winter feeding period.

• Get ready for fall calving and plan to have good pasture available at calving and through the breeding season.

Stockers

• Sell heavier grazing cattle before rate of gain decreases or they get into a heavyweight category. This will also relieve grazing pressure as pasture growth diminishes. They can be replaced with lightweight calves after pastures recover.

• Lighter cattle which are kept on pasture need to be rotated to grass-legume or warm-season grass pastures to maintain a desirable level of performance. Reimplant these calves and deworm with a product that is effective against inhibited ostertagia.

General

• Be sure that clean water is always available, especially in hot weather. Make routine checks of the water supply. Cattle need 13 to 20 gallons of clean water in hot weather.

• Maintain a weed control program in permanent pastures and continue to "spot-spray" thistle.

• Check pastures for downed wild cherry trees after storms (wilted wild cherry leaves are toxic to cattle).

• Have forage analyses conducted on spring-cut hay and have large, round bales covered. Begin planning the winter feeding program now. Most of the hay was cut late due to a wet spring but a dry period permitted it to be put up without getting it rained on – so overall not a bad haying season.

• Start soil testing pastures to determine fertilization needs for this fall.

All programs of the Powell County Extension Service are open to all people, regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability or national origin. Disabilities accommodated with prior notification.

ENCOURAGING WORD: AMBITION IS VITAL

Howard Coop
Guest Columnist

asked me a very pointed question. It involved a young man, living in another community, who was a good friend of mine. After I responded to that rather

One beautiful morning as I walked to the post office, I met a person that I had known for sometime. After a very pleasant greeting, we immediately began a rather spirited conversation. It didn't take long for me to sense the negative attitude that my friend possessed.

Soon after our conversation began, my friend pointed question, the comments about my friend became more and more critical. Finally, the person with whom I was conversing said somewhat sarcastically, "I don't like him; he's too ambitious."

My friend was an ambitious young man. To be ambitious is to possess an ambition, and that is a desire that drives one to achieve something in life. My thought, unexpressed at the moment, was: "You don't like someone because that person wants to achieve success in the field he has chosen for his life's work?" It's a fact observable in everyday life: Little that is worthwhile is ever achieved without ambition. An anonymous individual expressed it so well,

"Stand still and silently watch the world go by--- and it will."

Western civilization, of which we are a part, is permeated with the Judeo-Christian tradition. This tradition has given it a significant heritage dating back almost two thousand years. That heritage says, "Make it your ambition" to do three very specific things. And these three things, well done, that will always make life better. Those three important things are: "Lead a quiet life,"

"Mind your own business," "Work with your hands." And this work is done for two specific reasons: "So that your daily life may win the respect of" those with whom you associate, and "so that you will not be dependent on anybody."

So, ambition, controlled, is vital to a good life. It leads to significant accomplishment that is beneficial and satisfies the deep desires of the heart.

Brook Billings (left), Brooke Skidmore (middle) and Erin Fox entertained the crowd during the pageants at the festival. The trio received great reviews from the crowds.

The 5K was once again very popular this year. The top three finishers were: Men - Dario Ventura, Anthony Johnson and Ernie Whisman; Women - Cassie Crabtree, Carmen Billings (seen above) and Sarah Bolduc.

The Corn Hole Tournament is always a fun part of the festival. Ryan Hackworth and Phill Harman (above) won the tournament. Greg and Josh Begley placed second; Bill and Billy Johnson placed third.

The corn eating contest is always a blast and fun to watch. Young and the young at heart get really involved into the event. While the young men in the bottom photo battle it out, a mother-daughter team took first and second in their division. Brittany and Vicky Black took home the trophies
